MIMMO PALADINO

IT

Nato nel 1948 a Paduli (BN), vive e lavora tra Roma e Paduli.

La riflessione artistica di Mimmo Paladino si sviluppa a partire dalla fine degli anni '60. Affascinato dal clima culturale dell'epoca, tra arte concettuale e Pop Art americana, i cui artisti più rappresentativi avevano esposto alla Biennale di Venezia del '64, Paladino incentra la sua prima attività sulla fotografia, associata spesso al disegno, tecnica a lui particolarmente congeniale.

La sua prima personale viene presentata a Caserta nel 1969.

Negli anni '70 si afferma sempre più incisivamente nel suo percorso l'interesse per la figura: dalle iniziali sperimentazioni concettuali l'artista trasferisce la propria attenzione sulla pittura figurativa. Strutture geometriche e oggetti quali rami e maschere campeggiano sulle tele dai colori decisi. Nel 1978 è a New York dove inaugura, l'anno successivo, mostre personali alla Marian Goodman Gallery e alla Annina Nosei Gallery.

Nel 1980 partecipa alla Biennale di Venezia nella sezione Aperto '80 di Achille Bonito Oliva ed insieme a Sandro Chia, Francesco Clemente, Enzo Cucchi e Nicola De Maria dà vita alla Transavanguardia.

Negli anni '80 la sua arte diviene sempre più referenziale e sulle superfici dalle ampie dimensioni e di grande impatto visivo, l'artista rappresenta la vita e il mistero della morte. Le tecniche usate sono diverse: dal disegno all'incisione, dalla pittura all'inserimento nelle tele di elementi tridimensionali.

Dal 1985 si dedica alle grandi sculture in bronzo e alle installazioni: celebre l'intervento in Piazza del Plebiscito a Napoli dove realizza una enorme montagna di sale su cui pone sculture con forme animali e umane.

Negli anni '90 intensifica con successo l'attività all'estero e nel 1994, primo tra gli artisti italiani contemporanei, espone alla Galleria Nazionale di Belle Arti di Pechino. Nel 1999, nell'ambito del South London Gallery Project, in una grotta in mattoni sotto la Roundhouse at Chalk Farm di Londra installa l'opera I Dormienti, che dialoga con gli interventi sonori di Brian Eno.

Nel 2003 Paladino viene scelto come rappresentante dell'arte italiana durante la presidenza italiana a Bruxelles e la scultura equestre Zenith viene installata nella piazza della sede del Parlamento Europeo. Il Centro d'Arte Contemporanea Luigi Pecci di Prato, nel 2002-2003, gli dedica una mostra retrospettiva e nel 2004 alla Reggia di Caserta, nell'ambito del progetto Terrae Motus, si tiene una personale con i suoi lavori più recenti. Nel 2005 espone al MAR di Ravenna le scenografie realizzate negli ultimi quindici anni, e al Museo di Capodimonte di Napoli presenta un lavoro dedicato a Don Chisciotte che prelude Quijote, il lungometraggio che l'artista dirigerà l'anno successivo. Nel 2008 gli viene affidata la realizzazione della copertura delle impalcature del cantiere di restauro della Ghirlandina, la torre campanaria del Duomo di Modena. Nello stesso anno si tiene un'importante mostra al Museo dell'Ara Pacis di Roma con l'apporto del musicista Brian Eno.

Altra importante installazione è quella presente sull'isola di Lampedusa per commemorare le vittime degli sbarchi clandestini.

Nel 2010 è stato installato un cavallo blu di oltre quattro metri all'Anfiteatro del Vittoriale degli Italiani di Gardone Riviera (BS), la casa-museo di Gabriele d'Annunzio; nello stesso anno ha firmato la scenografia di 'Work in Progress', tour che ha visto riunirsi dopo 30 anni la coppia Lucio Dalla e Francesco De Gregori.

Nel 2011 realizza la nuova sala permanente del Museo Nazionale Archeologico di Villa Frigerj a Chieti dedicata al Guerriero di Capestrano e inaugura la mostra di sculture incentrata sul 'nuovo Guerriero', allestita presso il Centro espositivo della Fondazione Carichetti a Palazzo De Mayo. Sempre nel 2011 la città di Milano dedica al maestro una retrospettiva a Palazzo Reale, davanti al quale, in piazzetta Reale, viene installata la monumentale Montagna di sale, e sempre nella medesima sede espositiva, sue opere sono state oggetto della mostra antologica sulla Transavanguardia curata da Achille Bonito Oliva insieme agli altri 4 grandi protagonisti della corrente artistica. Nel 2012 ha realizzato la mostra Nuovi dipinti alla Galleria Mazzoli dove ha esposto un nucleo di dipinti polimaterici in cui il dialogo tra pittura e scultura si arricchisce di objets trouvés, come rami ed elementi lignei, fino ad uscire dalla bidimensionalità.

Nel 2015 partecipa nuovamente alla Biennale di Venezia, Padiglione Italia, con uno spazio a lui dedicato.

Le opere di Mimmo Paladino sono presenti nelle collezioni dei più importanti musei internazionali tra cui la Galleria Nazionale d'Arte Moderna di Roma, la Galleria d'Arte Moderna di Bologna, Lenbachhaus di Monaco, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Metropolitan Museum of Art, il MOMA e il Guggenheim Museum di New York, la Nationalgalerie Berlino, lo Stedelijk Musem di Amsterdam e la Tate di Londra, il Museo di Capodimonte e il MADRE di Napoli.

Gli sono state dedicate mostre in importanti musei e istituzioni quali il Museo Madre di Napoli, il Centro per l'arte Contemporanea Luigi Pecci di Prato, Stedelijk Museum di Amsterdam, il MOMA di New York, la Galleria Nazionale d'Arte Moderna di Roma, il MACRO e il MAXXI di Roma, la Tate Modern di Londra, il Kunstmuseum di Basilea, il MOCA di Shanghai, il MUMOK di Vienna.

EN

Born in 1948 in Paduli (BN), he lives and works in Rome and Paduli.

The artistic research of Mimmo Paladino began in the late 1960s. Fascinated by the cultural atmosphere of the time, between Conceptual Art and American Pop Art, whose most representative artists had shown work at the Venice Biennale in 1964, Paladino worked at first on photography, often combined with drawing, a particularly congenial technique for him.

His first solo show was held in Caserta in 1969.

In the 1970s his interest in the figure became increasingly incisive: from the initial conceptual experiments, his attention shifted to figurative painting. Geometric structures and objects like branches and masks appeared on canvases in forceful colors. In 1978 he was in New York, where the next year he had solo shows at Marian Goodman Gallery and Annina Nosei Gallery.

In 1980 he took part in the Venice Biennale in the Aperto '80 section curated by Achille Bonito Oliva; together with Sandro Chia, Francesco Clemente, Enzo Cucchi and Nicola De Maria, he helped to found the Transavanguardia movement.

In the 1980s his art became increasingly referential, involving large surfaces of great visual impact, representing life and the mystery of death. He used a range of different techniques: from drawing to engraving, painting to the insertion of three-dimensional objects on the canvases.

Starting in 1985, he worked on large bronze sculptures and installations: one famous project was at Piazza del Plebiscito in Naples, where he made an enormous mountain of salt on which to place sculptures with forms of animals and human beings.

In the 1990s his activity abroad intensified, with great success, and in 1994 he was the first Italian contemporary artist to show at the National Gallery of Fine Arts of Beijing. In 1999, as part of the South London Gallery project, in a brick cavern under the Roundhouse at Chalk Farm, he installed the work I Dormienti, in a dialogue with the sound works of Brian Eno.

In 2003 Paladino was chosen as the representative of Italian art during the Italian EU presidency in Brussels, and the equestrian sculpture Zenith was installed in the plaza of the headquarters of the European Parliament. Centro d'Arte Contemporanea Luigi Pecci of Prato, in 2002-03, presented a retrospective of his work, and in 2004 at the Reggia di Caserta, in the context of the project Terrae Motus, he held a solo show with his most recent works. In 2005 the sets created over the last 15 years were shown at the MAR in Ravenna, and the Museo di Capodimonte of Naples presented a work on Don Quixote which was a prelude to Quijote, a feature-length film the artist directed during the next year. In 2008 he was commissioned to make the covering of the scaffolding of the restoration worksite of the Ghirlandina, the steeple of the cathedral of Modena. That same year he had an important exhibition at the Museo dell'Ara Pacis in Rome, with the contribution of the musician Brian Eno.

Another important installation has been placed on the island of Lampedusa, to commemorate the victims of illegal immigration attempts.

In 2010 a blue horse with a height of over four meters was installed at the amphitheater of the Vittoriale degli Italiani at Gardone Riviera (BS), the house-museum of Gabriele d'Annunzio; that same year he created the sets for "Work in Progress," the tour that brought back together, after 30 years, the two singer-songwriters Lucio Dalla and Francesco De Gregori.

In 2011 he completed the new permanent room of the National Archaeological Museum of Villa Frigerj in Chieti for the Warrior of Capestrano, opening an exhibition of sculptures focusing on the "new Warrior" set up in the spaces of Fondazione Caricheti at Palazzo De Mayo. Also in 2011, the city of Milan held a retrospective of his work at Palazzo Reale; in front of the building, on Piazzetta Reale, the monumental Montagna di sale (Mountain of Salt) was installed. In the same exhibition space, his works were also part of a retrospective on the Transavanguardia curated by Achille Bonito Oliva, together with those of the other four major figures of that artistic current.

In 2012 he presented the exhibition New Paintings at Galleria Mazzoli, showing a nucleus of multi-material paintings in which the dialogue between painting and sculpture is enhanced by objets trouvés like branches and pieces of wood, shifting from two to three dimensions.

In 2015 he again participated at the Venice Biennale, Padiglione Italia, with his own separate space.

The works of Mimmo Paladino are included in the collections of the most important international museums, including Galleria Nazionale d'Arte Moderna in Rome, Galleria d'Arte Moderna in Bologna, Lenbachhaus in Munich, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Metropolitan Museum of Art, MoMA and the Guggenheim Museum in New York, Nationalgalerie Berlin, Stedelijk Museum in Amsterdam and the Tate in London, Museo di Capodimonte and the MADRE in Naples.

He has held exhibitions in important museums and institutions like MADRE Naples, Centro per l'arte Contemporanea Luigi Pecci in Prato, Stedelijk Museum in Amsterdam, MoMA New York, Galleria Nazionale d'Arte Moderna in Rome, MACRO and MAXXI in Rome, the Tate Modern in London, the Kunstmuseum of Basel, MOCA Shanghai, MUMOK Vienna.
